SUBJECT: GITMO DETAINEE RELATIVES, ACTIVISTS PROTEST

REF: KHARTOUM 1298

¶1. (U) SUMMARY: About 25 demonstrators gathered outside the U.S. Embassy in Khartoum on August 19 to protest the continued detention of nine Sudanese citizens held in Guantanamo Bay. The demonstration included six relatives of the detainees who carried photographs of their family members. Approximately a dozen riot police encircled the demonstration, which remained peaceful and ended after 30 minutes. Sudanese and international journalists covered the event. END SUMMARY.

¶2. (U) At approximately 11:30 a.m. on August 19, about 25 individuals, many carrying photographs and signs in support of the nine Sudanese being detained at Guantanamo Bay, demonstrated in front of the Embassy's main gate. The protest was organized by family members of the detainees. Although the protest was peaceful, police in riot gear encircled the protestors as a precaution. (NOTE: There have been additional police deployed in the vicinity of the Embassy in recent days in response to a terror threat aimed at Western interests (reftel). END NOTE.) Six family members of the detainees were present and carried photos of their relatives. PAO stepped out onto the street where the protest was taking place and listened as protest organizers read English and Arabic communiques. Organizers also provided PAO with what they said were signed petitions (English text attached paragraph 5) from Guantanamo Bay detainees' relatives and some 5,000 supporters. PAO accepted the documents and responded by saying that the protestors' message would be conveyed to Washington. The Embassy will forward these documents to Washington via pouch.

¶3. (U) There was Sudanese and international press coverage of the event on Aug. 19 and 20. Both Sudan TV and Al-Jazeera, as well as Reuters, were present at the demonstration. The independent "Al-Ayaam" carried the story on its front page with a photo and the accompanying headline, "Khartoum demonstrates for the release of the Guantanamo detainees." The article stated that the detainees have been in Guantanamo Bay for more than five years and that the Sudanese government "announces from time to time that the detainees will be released, without designating a definite time." According to the article, this situation forced the families of the detainees to organize the protest.

¶4. (U) The "Al-Ayaam" article also repeated that Minister of Justice Muhammad Ali Mardi announced that the U.S. authorities would release Al-Jazeera TV cameraman, Sami Al-Haj, in the next two to three weeks. This report follows Mardi's appearance on Al-Jazeera on August 18 where he made similar comments. Last week, the Sudanese press also reported that a senior-level delegation from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs led by State Minister Al-Samani El-Wasila was invited by the U.S. to visit Washington before the end of this month to discuss the release of Al-Haj. [COMMENT: The Sudanese expectations for Al-Samani's scheduled trip to Washington appear to be very high, even if the release of Al-Haj is not up for discussion. END COMMENT.]
